It's Not Like You See in the Movies

5 Views of "Off the Record" FishBowlDC

"Off the record." It's not like you see in the movies, where a source tells a reporter something's "off the record" and then gives it to him/her. That's Hollywood crap. Unless the reporter agrees to the deal, there is no deal. Another problem: what's "off the record" and virtually unusable to one reporter is "not for attribution" and usable to another. And even if you do want the reporter to use the information but not attribute it to you, you must negotiate the attribution. Still confused? Come to one of our longer crisis communications seminars where we explain the differences and give you techniques to make certain you don't say something you wish you didn't say.

F.W.I.

We can think of one way to avoid needing a crisis communications consultant: don't drink and Facebook. Here is an infographic showing how social media dangers increase in tandem with alcohol consumption.

Apologize !

After a Medical Mistake, an Apology is Both Simple and Difficult

KevinMD.com

Dr. Jim Demane: "It is best for all involved to personally make a face to face apology. Sometimes one is forgiven, then sometimes not. But if animosity can be decreased, often a settlement can be reached after an honest admission of a mistake. Involving the patient and/or loved ones in a case review with all present can be very powerful. It's very hard to stay angry or want to punish someone who can look you in the eye and sincerely apologize, plus actively listening to all your concerns. There comes a point that we all recognize that we're only human."

Saying you're sorry works in non-medical situations, as well. For more information about the how and why, check out SorryWorks.

Sins of Omission

Informing Residents Was a 'Moral Obligation' Montreal Gazette

Government officials had no legal obligation to inform the residents of Pointe-Claire that there was an illegal stockpile of hazardous waste in the middle of their community, but experts say they should have done so anyway.

Be Prepared

September is National Preparedness Month. It is a time to prepare yourself and those in your care for emergencies and disasters. If you've seen the news recently, you know that emergencies can happen unexpectedly in communities just like yours, to people like you. We've seen tornado outbreaks, river floods and flash floods, historic earthquakes, tsunamis, and even water main breaks and power outages in U.S. cities affecting millions of people for days at a time. Police, fire and rescue may not always be able to reach you quickly in an emergency or disaster. The most important step you can take in helping your local responders is being able to take care of yourself and those in your care; the more people who are prepared, the quicker the community will recover. This September, please prepare and plan in the event you must go for three days without electricity, water service, access to a supermarket, or local services for several days. Just follow these four steps: Stay Informed; Access Ready.gov to learn what to do before, during, and after an emergency; Make a Plan: Build a Kit.

It's Not Just What You Say

Body Language Will Make or Break Future Leaders CommPro.biz

From Dr. Carol Kinsey Goman: "In the future, leaders who believe that what they say carries more weight than anything they do, will be asked to step down from that position - or simply step down. The most successful leaders will be those whose policies, actions, behaviors, and, yes, body language are strategically aligned with their verbal messages."

We agree wholeheartedly. In fact, when Hennes Paynter helps prepare executives to talk to the media or other audiences, we often spend significant time on non-verbal messages.

Short Takes

Never Forget Poynter

There is indeed a time and place for 9-11 tributes, but the internet and social media may not be the right place - especially when mixed with commercialism. We agree with the Poynter Institute, who suggests a "gusher of banality at such an anniversary isn't, in fact, a fitting tribute to the people who died that day." We agree.

HENNES & PAYNTER
ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Managing the Media: Lawyers & The Press CLE

As almost any general counsel of a large, publicly traded, consumer-oriented company will tell you, legal controversies today are tried in the Court of Public Opinion -- at least as much as in any Court of Law. Every organization, especially large, publicly-traded corporations, has much to gain (or lose) by the way a legal controversy is positioned in the media. Because the value of a company's reputation is immeasurable -- and perhaps its largest uninsured asset -- a corporation loses when the brand image is tarnished, even if the corporation technically wins at trial. Furthermore, since most legal controversies are settled prior to trial, the Court of Public Opinion has arguably become the most important battleground affecting not only good will and market share, but legal bargaining power and settlement negotiations. Managing this battleground, therefore, has become integral to many corporations' legal strategies.

Georgetown Journal of Legal Ethics, Vol. 22, 2009

In these days of 24/7 instant news, where Twitter and Facebook exponentially amplify crisis situations, organizations simply cannot wait until a legal decision is rendered. They must be prepared to vigorously defend their position in a wide variety of venues, as well as media outlets.

Hennes Paynter Communications works with corporations, government agencies, non-profits, schools, hospitals and educational institutions to communicate their way through legal and reputational challenges ranging from criminal charges and claims of medical and professional malpractice to plant closings, food and product liability issues, ownership and transition disputes that threaten the very existence of an organization. We are practiced in the art of working with attorneys and, in fact, are frequently brought in by attorneys who recognize the value we bring to the table. We often work with legal teams by immediately preparing for the Court of Public Opinion so they and their client are not declared "guilty" before they can even be heard in the Court of Law -- and sometimes, we can help forestall a situation from even spawning a court case at all.

The American Bar Association, numerous law firms and local bar associations have brought us in to do one of our seminars, including some who've used our seminar for a marketing opportunity, inviting a large number of corporate attorneys, as well as prospects for new business. Call us at 216-321-7774 to discuss particulars.

Crisis/Media Training & Coaching

Your organization is in trouble...your CFO has been arrested...the company truck was in an accident...hackers hijacked your database...the pressure is on...the camera crew is at the door....

Do you know how to handle a high-pressure TV interview? Will your messages survive the editing booth? Do you know where to put your hands? What to wear? Do you look at the camera - or at the interviewer?

It takes a lifetime to build a reputation and only a few seconds to destroy one. In a split second you could find yourself in a position where you need to know how to handle the media or be a public spokesperson. Would you know what to do or how to respond?

More important - do you have the necessary skill set to "manage the message" and advance the cause of your business, agency or nonprofit?

You can be certain the senior executives at virtually all of the Fortune 500 companies have been through media training, working with a media coach to learn how to handle adversarial situations with journalists and stakeholders. Perhaps it's time for you to learn this specialized set of survival skills?

We also offer spokesperson & presentation training and coaching, designed to improve your daily interactions with colleagues, employees, investors, journalists and other outside parties.

Call Bruce Hennes, Barb Paynter and the staff at Hennes Paynter Communications today at 216-321-7774 and talk to us about media, spokesperson and presentation training and coaching for you, your top execs -- or anyone who might have to hold the fort down with a reporter until the appropriate spokesperson can be located.

Ask us, too, about how we can help you create, implement and test a crisis communications plan.

When your organization or reputation is threatened, you need a specialist.
